Later, when Runyon's past record was obtained, the more serious charge of housebreaking was entered. The second charge of housebreaking was entered. The second charge of housebreaking was preferred after an investigation of the robbery at the Moseley home and the identification of property found in the prisoner's possession as having been taken from the house.

Whichard Loses Heart.

Since their arrest and incarceration in cells at the Third Precinct Station the youths, who are about eighteen years of age, have been entertaining their custodians with tales of their experiences. The braggart air of young Whichard soon left him, however, after he seemed to realize the enormity of the offenses charged against him. Young Runyon appears to take pride in telling of his "crook" experiences. He says that in recent travels through the West he became acquainted with several noted Western crooks and enjoyed their confidence. Savannah, Ga., July 1.—Ely Runyon escaped from the Chatham county chain gang on the night of June 12, making good a promise to his guards that he would not serve out his sentence of one year. Not only did the "boy burglar," as he was known here, escape, but he took two others with him.

The boy entered the home of Harvey Granger, one of the wealthiest men in Savannah, the Calhoun and Wood homes here, and then committed a number of robberies at the Screven House, where he had a room,

He was caught through these latter robberies. He had a penchant for jew-elry. Several watches, pins, etc., were found on him.

The boy declared he had never carried a pistol. His mother's plea for him in court saved him a sentence as prescribed for burglars, and he was punished for a misdemeanor.

If he receives a long sentence in Washington it is probable the Georgia authorities will not ask for his return here. The boy declared he had never car-

Tobacconists Adopt Novel Plan for Their Annual Meeting.

SAIL ON VOYAGE TO NEW YORK

Delegates Charter Palatial Steamship of Old Dominion

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Old, Point, Va., July 1.—The James town, one of the most magnificent ships of the fleet of the Old Dominion Steamship Line, passed here at 8 o'clock to night, bound for New York with a tolly assembly of tobacconists of the South and West on board.

The annual convention of the Tobac co Association of the United States, a national organization of independent town as that splendld ship of the Old Dominion Line plows the waters of the Atlantic. While the headquarters of this national association is in Richmond, it is by no means a local affair, its membership extending through all of the States that are interested in tobacco culture and tobacco manufacturing.

Many Delegates Attend.

Dominion wharf to-morrow afternoon, and an automobile ride about the city will follow. A second session of the association will probably be held at the Hotel Imperial in New York to-morrow night, and it is more than likely that all of the business will be wound up then. At these sessions of the association various matters of interest to the tobacco trade will be discussed and settled as far as the association can settle them.

will be held at Silver Bay, the latter being in the nature of a general missionary gathering.

The interdenominational feature does much to increase the attendance and the interest of these conferences.

Returns to Asheville.

The Southern Conference was held in Asheville for six years in succession, 1903-'08, and during those years Kenikworth Inn was the meeting place. Owing to the burning of Kenliworth just a short time before the meeting of the conference of 1909, it was not held in Asheville, but the management of the conference counts itself fortunate in being able to hold the session in Asheville again this year, and fortunate also in having secured the Normal and Collegiate Institute as the place of meeting. The institute as the place of meeting. The institute is located on the outskirts of Asheville, on the line between the centre of the city and Biltmore, and most of the delegates are being entertained in the school building.

Near the main building is the chapel of the institute, which is admirably suitable as the place for holding the platform meetings of the conference, and some of the study sections as well.

The program has been arranged so that only morning and evening sessions will be held, leaving the afternoons open for the delegates to use in rest, study, recreation and social intercourse. The conference will close with the session of Sunday evening, July 10.

Chicago, Ill., July I.—Reaching back through subbeases controlled by a landlady a saloonkeeper and a brewing concern, members of the grand fury here late yesterday returned an indictment against Washington Porter, wealthy clubman and golf enthusiast, on a charge of leasing a building for immoral purposes.

Porter was astounded when told of his indictment. He said that he leased the property to a brewing company several years ago and since that time had not visited the building, although as owner he had received a yearly rental for the place.

STUDENTS' WAR RENEWED

Lemberg, Austria-Hungary, July 1.

The two groups of Ruthenian and Polish students of the University of Lemberg got at each other again today. Before the police had separated the combatants ranny officials and students had been seriously wounded. The feud, born of racial jealousy, is as old as the university itself. Periodical clashes have occurred.

For some time the bitter feeling has been held in bounds by the university authorities. This morning it broke out with renewed fury, and led to a fierce battle for the pessession of the campus.

Hundreds of students were involved Many o fithem were armed with reviewers and these were used freely. When the firing regan a strong force of policemen was summoned. The fight became a three-cornered affair. The police finally succeeded in driving the students to cover.

Broken heads were the rule. In numerous instances injuries of a grave nature were found to have been infilicted.

Easy to Slam Him.

This is a very good defensive position until he starts to bore in, but when he starts that fairly quick rush of his he opens up his arms and gets himself into an easy position for a man like Johnson to slam him. That is why I think that in the early part of the battle at least Jeffries will have to submit to quite a little punishment Johnson, with his feet flat on the floor, does not hop around at all. His left arm is extended just far enough to hit or block; the right is crossed over the stomach in a graceful manner, seeming to cover the entire lower body; his head is carried in an easy, natural position. Case Against Alleged Incendiaries Postponed to Get More Evidence.
On account of the desire of Detective Sergeant Wiley, and Acting Detective Kellam to procure further evidence, Justice Crutchfield yesterday morning postponed the preliminary hearing of Robert Johnson, Thomas Payne and Hood Murchison, colored, suspected of having set fire to three houses in Jackson Ward.

The case against Percy Johnson, colored, suspected of being the negro who snatched the purse of Mrs. R. L. Dodson, of 2024 Stuart Avenue, several days ago, was continued at the request of Sergeant Wiley and Acting Detective Kellam, who wish to get more evidence against the man. Johnson was confronted by Mrs. Dodson, who is not able positively to identify him. Johnson is also suspected of other crimes.

Julian Wood, charged with assaulting H. M. Lovenstein in the Bilou Theatre Thursday night, was fined $20. He appealed, and was balled for his appearance in the Hustings Court.
